MULTIPLYING DISCIPLES

When we think of discipleship, we tend to think in terms of a class or a series of classes to attend, but what if we changed the way we think?

- What if we had a relational view of discipleship that extends generationally?
- What if we had tools to help develop life-long disciples?
- What if each member took the Great Commission seriously and discipled three people each year?
- And what if each person being discipled decides to disciple three people per year?

Join us as we discuss the process and challenges of multiplying disciples. Receive a hands-on session of how it works along with free materials to begin discipling including on-going coaching. Walk away with a vision, mission and tools to help your ministry multiply disciples.

Reaching Kids For Christ (using the IPEAR)

One-third of the world's population is younger than 15 years of age. Estimates are that more than 80 percent of the world's young people, totaling 1.4 billion, are growing up in non-Christian homes. If we are to evangelize the world, we must evangelize its children. Jesus said, "It is not the will of your Father...that one of these little ones should perish" (Matt. 18:14) and Christians everywhere should know how to simply lead children to Christ. With 25 years of ministry including being a youth pastor of a youth group of 300 kids and leading a ministry that reached 80,000 children last year in Southern California, Scott will share Biblical concepts for reaching children.

Scott Julian

Scott has been in full-time ministry since 1992, when he developed a vibrant youth ministry at a new church plant in the Seattle area. That ministry grew and many youth developed committed relationships with Christ through a strong discipleship program. In the year 2006, God called Scott and his family to full-time ministry in the Los Angeles area. Scott has been thrilled to see God revitalize a church on the Westside of Los Angeles and is humbled by the fact that God would use him to be a part of that work and to have him serve with Child Evangelism Fellowship. Through his down-to-earth teaching style, many new believers are being reached and lives are being changed because the Truth is unashamedly being preached. Scott has a passion for the family and knows that the only way for the family to be strong again in our culture is to bring families back to the Word of God specifically with challenging men to rise up and be the leaders of their families. Scott and his wife, Jenny, consider it a huge blessing to minister to and disciple their children and have been blessed by the freedom to homeschool their 3 kids. The oldest is in seminary and the younger two are now in Bible College.

Freedom in Spiritual Disciplines

Our culture views disciplines as restrictive, but in reality discipline liberates us. The more disciplined a person is the more freedom they experience. We will explore two of the most important commodities of our culture that could transform your congregation's world and impact others around them. You have heard people say or you may even have uttered these very words yourself, "I never have enough time in a day" and wonder how others accomplish so much more than us. Many have said, "I never have enough money" and wonder why those who make less have more. Come and learn to go and teach others how they can find freedom in these two disciplines.
